THE KENITORIAL 1931

VOLUME EIGHT

KENMORE HIGH SCHOOL

KENMORE, NEW YORK

FOREWORD

During the two thousand years since his death, the great Vergil, whom masters after him have chosen as their guide, has lived for us through the power of his genius. His is the age to which we trace the birth of philosophy, oratory, literature, and art. Even today, wondering and marveling, our minds trace back through centuries to the beauty of the age of Vergil. . . . During the school year of 1930-1931 we have celebrated the great master's birthday, and through this event we have once again discovered the real value of the Classical Age. It is for this reason that we have chosen the Classical Era as the theme of our year-book with the hope that students and teachers alike will feel added interest in the subject.

Publius Vergilius Maro
B.C. 70 — B.C. 19

DEDICATION

During the past school year we, as well as hundreds of others throughout the world, have been celebrating the Bimillenium of Publius Vergilius Maro, one of the greatest poets of the world. His fame, as has been proved through centuries of harsh criticism, is of invincible nature. This is true not only of his reputation as a poet, but even more of his fame as one who understood and sympathized with his fellow men. His name and the word "Classics" stand together inseparable. Our debt to him is far beyond payment; yet just as the widow proudly gave her mite, we, in similar spirit, dedicate this issue of "The Kenitorial," in which we have tried to carry out a classical theme, to his immortal name.

FRANK C. DENSBERGER, Ph.B., M.A.

At the head of Kenmore's school system stands a man whom we know, not only as the superintendent of our schools and as a teacher, but as our advisor and counsellor as well. This man is Superintendent Frank C. Densberger who came to us sixteen years ago.

At the time when Mr. Densberger first became the principal figure in Kenmore's modest educational system, the facilities consisted of but one building, in which fourteen teachers amply met the students' needs. But in the sixteen years that have elapsed, the growth of our school system under Superintendent Densberger's guidance, has been as phenomenal as that of the village. We now have seven excellent buildings and two hundred and five teachers, forming a most complex unit. Only a man of exceptional ability could direct this rapid development as Mr. Densberger has done.

The Greek gods around whom we are writing this year-book have bequeathed to us a heritage of ideals and conduct that is undying. Just so will the high ideals on which our school system is founded prove that they too are imperishable.

ROY G. FREEMAN, A.B., M.A.

We are indeed fortunate to have as the principal of our school a man with good executive abilities and kindly spirit. Not only in our scholastic endeavors, but also in our athletic and social activities, "Doc" has been our guide and friend.

His foresight and planning have resulted in many additions to the curriculum of our high school, as well as the enlargement of departments formerly organized. It is certain that his wise administration has helped Kenmore High School achieve a prominent position in the educational system of New York State.

In spite of increasing administrative duties, Principal Freeman has remained interested in the problems which our activities present. To each of us he is "Doc," a friend, a teacher, and a counsellor.

RAYMOND S. FRAZIER, B.S.

Vice-Principal Raymond S. Frazier has completed seven years of efficient leadership as head of the Commercial Department and as instructor of economics.

As an administrator, Mr. Frazier has real power. He has met the growing needs of his section of education, and today we have one of the best organized and equipped Commercial Departments in the State.

Mr. Frazier has also served as the business advisor of "The Kenitorial" and as treasurer of all school funds. Because of his keen business ability, "The Kenitorial" always closes the year with a surplus fund.

CARL W. BAISCH, B.S., M.A.

Vice-Principal Carl W. Baisch, who has rounded out seven years as instructor of chemistry and head of the Science Department of Kenmore High School, is to be highly congratulated upon his achievements.

Mr. Baisch is a partisan of the educational idea which stands for the combined development of the mental and physical ability of the pupil, and this year as in previous years, he has coached a very successful football team.

Mr. Baisch, who is one of the most popular members of the faculty, has the admiration and respect of every member of the student body.

Officers of Senior Class

Just as June is the beginning of summer and the end of spring, so graduation is the beginning of a new type of life for us and the end of a period which will always personify fond memories.

For four years we have looked ahead with great anticipation to the time when we would have the distinction of graduating. Unflinchingly, we have endeavored to meet the qualifications of the Freshman, Sophomore, Junior, and Senior years. We have tried to fulfill these requirements to the best of our ability, and now we stand upon the threshold of a new life.

However, as the time for our saying "vale" to our Alma Mater draws near, our views of four years ago take on an entirely different aspect. Now we realize what these four years have meant to us: the forming of friendships, pleasant associations with one another, jovial times together, life lessons learned, and the development and molding of personal attributes. As we look back, many happy memories greet us.

Even though we are looking ahead with great expectation to advancing our education in college or in the complex business world, the very heart of every Senior senses an acute pang when he realizes that his high school days have drawn to a close. How many would like to live these years over again!

The Class of '31 has essayed to attain the highest of standards in every field of activity. Scholarship has been outstanding; the ability to be good followers as well as leaders has been evidenced; extra-curricular activities have engaged a large majority of us; we have endeavored to cooperate to the best of our ability with the faculty as well as with the other students.

There is no more appropriate time than this to gratefully acknowledge our appreciation of the unceasing efforts of our class advisor, Mr. William Braunton.

May the years to come be as bright as the happy ones which have just become a treasury of memories.

ROBERT L. MCEWEN
President, Senior Class

"Labores" of the Senior Class

Four years have passed since our triumphal entry into high school. They have been years of hard endeavor to overcome difficult phases of our work, but throughout them all, we have enjoyed that golden bond of friendship which is of infinite value to everyone. Graduation means a great deal more to us than merely leaving school; it means the parting of loyal friends and the new experience of going out into the world to "dig" for ourselves. Some students will go east, others west, but memories of their Alma Mater will never desert them. To bring back thoughts of the good old days, let us enter the reminiscent mood and gently turn the pages of our diary.

The first chapter is devoted to our Freshman year. No one could possibly have been prouder than we as we strutted down the halls with our load of books. Parties, too, were not lacking. Who could forget that glorious time we had in the old gym? Games and eats enough to satisfy everyone! Neither were we lacking in originality. Setting the precedent which has ever since been followed, we presented the Junior High School, upon our graduation, with a beautiful picture which has done much to beautify the hallways of K. H. S.

Time passed rapidly and it was not long before we were full-fledged members of Senior High School. We had passed our first "green" year and could now consider ourselves a little bit above the new Freshmen following in our footsteps. We were certainly getting on in the world.

Turning the pages of our book, we come to our eventful Junior year. Under the helpful guidance of Mr. Baisch, we embarked upon what was to prove a memorable period of our high school days. As we were occupied with the usual struggles with homework and regents, time seemed to pass quickly and we soon found ourselves anticipating the Junior picnic. What a picnic that was and what a picture Keith Morgan made when he emerged nonchalantly from an overturned canoe! (Did we say nonchalantly?) Remember the bread line? Worse than a bread line was the crowd that pushed, shoved, and knocked to gain a few hot dogs and a bottle of pop. It will be a long time before we forget that picnic.

The annual Junior Prom was next on the list. That, too, was a big success, with gayly colored balloons suspended over the heads of the graceful couples and an orchestra to drive away our blues. It lasted but a few hours and at its close we found ourselves nearly at the end of our Junior year and on the threshold of attaining what we had many times longed for—our Senior year.

Seniors at last! What a thrill to be listed as among those who have reached the climax of their high school career! We turn the pages slowly, for we are nearing the end and wish to prolong our story as long as possible. In a short time, "Finis" will be written after our names and way made for others to follow. They may be able to take our places, but no one can rob us of memories.

"Labores" of the Senior Class

What fun we had raising money for the Washington trip! First, there was the Harvest Carnival. No one could forget that, especially those on the decorating committee who were on their knees practically all the afternoon pinning strips of paper to the strings used in beautifying the cafeteria. Then we mustn't overlook that vaudeville show which did so much to make the evening a success. It's really surprising what good Indians our Senior boys make.

This was by no means the end of our activities, for soon came magazine and Sal-O-Well campaigns. Two quite different articles, we assure you. We won't forget either Murray Wilkinson's pleading for money not yet turned in. Between the benefit show at the Kenmore Theatre and the Senior play, it seemed as if we were never rid of tickets. There were always some to be sold. "Tickets" became our password during the early months of the year.

Spring finally came and with it Washington. To the lucky ones of us who went, it was all we could expect and more! Days on the go from morning 'til night; sights overaweing us; history revealing itself before our eyes; fun aboard ship. What memories to store in our minds for future years!

Celebrities come under the next heading. There are so many representing every phase of school life that it will be impossible to name them all. First, however, come those of high scholastic standing. Of the thirty-five honor students, Jane Quigley, Betty Weller, and Elizabeth Katzmayer managed to come to the front and received the honors of being the highest in this year's class. "Bob" McEwen achieved first place among the boys.

A rising vote of thanks is given to the Rostrum staffs who worked hard in providing bits of school news for our weekly enjoyment.

What's this? Dan Steible and Marge Hauser arguing? Nothing serious we hope; probably just force of habit as a result of their hard work on the debate team. Speaking of debate, it may be of interest to know that it was through the efforts of our class that we entered the National Debating Society.

Last, but by no means least, come the pages turned over entirely to sports. Both football and swimming teams are to be congratulated upon having the most successful season known in this school. We surely are proud of them. Then that basketball team! Who can forget that? Our boys fought so hard and had so few defeats that it seems a shame to give them only this passing notice. However, they know how much we appreciate all that they have done.

We'll never forget those years of work and play alike nor our friends, the teachers, always ready to help us when we were slipping. K. H. S. is now our Alma Mater. The first volume of our life has been closed. We have the second in our hand but have not yet opened it. The future is before us—what we make of it depends upon ourselves.

TWO FIRES

A fire that burns with a flame so bright
And beckoning
That all the world around is warm and gay
In its burning.
A fire whose sparks reach into cold corners
And give them light,
Whose beacon flames touch highest heaven and shine
Throughout the night.
. . . . This is life!

A fire whose light is dim, and only glows,
Whose coals are red,
But give no heat, nor light, nor any flame
From out their bed.
A fire that flames, then flickers, in the wind,
And soon must fade
Until nothing is left but the ashes
Where fire was made.
. . . . This is death!

MARJORIE E. JOHNSON

Open Gates

Thy gates are closing now, and we
Look back with longing eyes
Over thy great broad highway where
Our field of honor lies.

Thy gates are closing on us now,
But other gates we see.
Through them a pathway leads along
Into eternity.

We cannot see the road it takes,
If it be steep or long,
But we must tread it strong in heart,
And on our lips a song.

We know that though our path be dark,
'Twill lead through light to day.
The lamp our Alma Mater lights
Will guide us all the way.

A Message from the Juniors

With the passing of another Senior Class, Kenmore High School will lose a group of students who, because of their sincere efforts, have made their Alma Mater much better for the four years spent under her guidance.

We find in this group exceptional leaders in the various activities associated with our school. We feel especially proud of the high scholastic record that the Class of 1931 has attained. We are also indebted to the members of this class who have striven to put the name of Kenmore High School in an enviable position in the realm of sports.

The Junior Class takes this opportunity to congratulate the members of the Class of 1931 upon finishing their first step toward that goal for which we are all striving—each to be a citizen of whom his country may be proud. We assure them that they have the good wishes of the Class of 1932.

LLOYD D. CLARK
Junior Class President

"Commentaries" of the Sophomore Class

The Sophomore class of 1930-31 includes a very large group of students who have become part of various school organizations, and in their classes have shown that they have ability along different lines. The English classes contain several with literary talent, for several times when a Sophomore article was wanted for the Rostrum, the competition proved very strong. The original short stories written by the members of all divisions would do credit to a recognized author. Plays presented on the stage by some of the members of the Sophomore class have been acted as if the players were the characters in reality.

The school band includes a number of Sophomores who have proved a great addition to it. Some of the girls and boys have become leaders in several fields of school activities.

In the athletic field honors go to several of our Sophomore boys for the feats in the swimming meets and basketball games. They have fought hard for the school and have proved themselves good losers as well as good winners. In scholarship, also, many have distinguished themselves.

If the activities of this year's Sophomores are any indication of what is to come, the Juniors and Seniors of the next two years will become well known.

Junior High School

The Junior High School is completing another successful year. Founded seven years ago it has grown to over four times its original size. But in spite of this growth the paramount thought in the minds of the administration and faculty has been the welfare of the individual child. Success in scholastic attainment is important, but of far greater importance is the development of character and ability to make the necessary adjustments to life's problems. May these two factors always occupy first place in our school program.

FLOYD W. CHASE

With the Alumni

The Annual Banquet

The annual alumni banquet and business meeting, held at the High School Cafeteria on Thursday evening, June 19, 1930, was the most elaborate affair of its kind ever given by the Alumni Association. The graduating class was invited as guests of the alumni and, partly as a result of this invitation and partly as a result of aggressive publicity, the largest crowd in alumni banquet history attended the event. One hundred twenty-five people were present, more than three times the number at the same event the previous year.

Carlton K. Matson, Editor of the Buffalo Times, was the speaker of the evening. Mr. Matson drew from his background of experience in civic, commercial, educational, and journalistic fields to deliver a talk which met with unanimous and enthusiastic approval. Frank C. Moore, acting as master of ceremonies, had little difficulty in keeping everybody happy during the course of the evening. Miss Gladys Evans was heard in a group of readings; the University of Buffalo Male Quartet rendered several popular numbers; Harriet Crosby delighted the diners with three soprano solos; Ernest McLaren, accompanied by Earl Ruckman, gave a few snappy numbers on his fiddle; and the group singing was conducted by none other than "Pop" Arnold.

The following officers were elected for the year 1930-31: Leonard Hershiser, '23, President; Harriet Crosby, '25, Vice-President; Mary Budik, '29, Secretary; Stephen Austin, '28, Treasurer.

The Annual Play

"Set a Thief," a mystery melodrama, was presented by the Alumni Association in the High School Auditorium Friday evening, November 21, 1930, under the direction of Miss Gladys Evans.

Alice Lazelle, Harriet Crosby, Arja Williams, William Carey, Robert Martin, Harold Clark, Cecilia Wildey, William Baldwin, Marion Meyer, Mary Budik, and Laurence Flynn had parts in the play. While the audience was not so large as that attracted to the play in previous years, it was considered satisfactory in view of several other important events occurring in Kenmore on the same evening.

A feature of the play was the distribution of "extras," screaming the story of the murder and bond robbery, between the first and second acts. The papers were supplied through the courtesy of the Buffalo Times.

The Holiday Ball

The second annual holiday ball was held in the Colonial Ballroom of the Twentieth Century Club Saturday evening, December 27, 1930. Promoted under the slogan, "The most colorful affair of the season," the ball was a social, as well as a financial success.

Music was furnished by the Century Orchestra, consisting of ten men.

It is hoped to make the holiday ball an event looked forward to by alumni as the outstanding social affair of the holiday season. Although only two of these dances have been given, they have been of such character as to go far toward building up the desired tradition.

Plans for the Future

The annual alumni banquet this June will be the tenth anniversary of the organization of Kenmore High School Alumni Association. While it has not been definitely decided, it is expected that the graduating class of 1931 will be invited as guests of the association. This practice, let it be known, constitutes a serious drain on the association's treasury. The officers believe, however, that only in this way can the association create the interest and enthusiasm necessary to give it the strength to represent properly the fine school of which its members are alumni.

The Student Council

The Student Council is probably the organization which affects the student body at large to the greatest extent. This group meets regularly once a month, unless a special meeting is called by the president, to perform the following duties.

1. To aid in shaping student opinion.
2. To act as an interpreter between students and faculty.
3. To maintain a constancy of outstanding school spirit.

Debate

Although activity in debate work was somewhat curtailed because of a disagreement with the National Forensic League, Mr. William Braunton, debate coach, succeeded in turning out a finished team with only three veterans as a foundation.

The team composed of Eric Prior, Rosalind Baldwin, and Wilda Hodgson, with Dan Steible, Jr., as captain, lost a debate at Tonawanda by a close margin. At Kenmore the team composed of Marjorie Houser, Charles Kidd, and Robert Moody, captain, defeated Tonawanda in the other half of the dual debate. The thirteen month calendar question was the proposition in both debates.

The outstanding debate of the year was the Senior Prize Debate between Marjorie Houser and Dan Steible, Jr.

EDITORS-IN-CHIEF

Margarete Mark

The editors and staff of the 1931 Kenitorial have worked very earnestly to make this annual one of which the faculty and students of Kenmore High School can be justly proud.

We have endeavored to include within its covers the true Kenmore spirit—a spirit of progress and of success, and one also of respect for traditions as evidenced in the classical theme.

It is with strict impartiality that we have prepared the various departments of this book, and it is our sincere hope that everyone will receive as much pleasure through reading it as we have in preparing it.

The Art Department, the Commercial Department, and the English Department have been in charge of the art work, the finances, and the literary contributions respectively. Miss Jeannette Underwood has been art advisor, R. S. Frazier has been financial advisor, and Mrs. Gertrude Chittenden, assisted by Miss Esther Hepinstall and Miss Elizabeth Chittenden, has been general and literary advisor. We thank them for their generous and helpful cooperation.

The Honor Club

The second year of the Honor Club has seen an increase of thirteen members over the number of last year. To qualify, a student must earn an average of at least eighty-five per cent for the four years in high school. The organization is non-secret and has no officers. This year's graduating class is very happy to honor thirty-five of its members with membership in this club.

Band

The band, resplendent in blue uniforms, has been a feature of the athletic contests of the past year. Besides playing at football and basketball games, the band provided music at the sectional basketball tournament in the Elmwood Music Hall. Mr. Moore and his assistant, Mr. Barrett, deserve great credit for developing this excellent organization.

If a musical director takes over all musical activities, it is expected that the scope of band work will be extended even further.

Directors: Mr. Moore, Mr. Barrett

The Rostrum

It has been the purpose of the 1930-31 Rostrum editors and their staffs to portray, with as much accuracy as possible, the activities of the student body as a whole, of the various organizations, and of the alumni. The members of Alpha Phi Lambda have furnished some splendid literary material in addition to the literary editors' contributions.

The sports reporters have recorded faithfully the excellent basketball games as well as the various other sports. The sports news has been appearing on the regular sport page of the Kenmore Record which still prints the Rostrum. The year has been unusually successful.

Kenmore Senior Hi-Y Club

Discussions on vocations, education, and college, together with deputation team work on International Relations, constitute the outstanding accomplishments of the Kenmore Senior Hi-Y Club. A group of thirty-seven wide-awake young men, under the able leadership of William H. Braunton, have tried during the school year to carry out their purpose which is "to create, maintain, and extend high standards of Christian character throughout the school and the community."

This organization meets weekly for a dinner, which is followed by a business meeting and a good program. The members enjoy all the programs, most of which are their own contributions. The Hi-Y is an organization of young men, for young men, and is managed entirely by the young men of Kenmore High School.

Art Round Table

Another year has rolled by and the Art Round Table has passed its fourth birthday. The membership of the club has grown and its activities have become numerous. At Christmas time the club made calendars, each girl cutting a block design for a month. The proceeds of the calendar sale were twenty-five dollars. This spring the girls have made smocks to be worn in their craft work. The club meetings are held the first Monday night in every month and the second Tuesday afternoon is devoted to craft work. There have been eight evening meetings this year. The club has been under the leadership of Miss Jeannette Underwood.

Dramatic Club

The Dramatic Club of Kenmore High School includes Troupe 108 of the National Thespians. The officers of the former are also those of the latter. At the bi-monthly meetings of the Dramatic Club, various members are called upon to present sketches, original or otherwise, and the acting is then constructively criticized by the members and the advisor, Miss M. Gladys Evans. It is in this way that this organization is attempting to make for "better dramatics in the high school."

The presentation of Oliver Goldsmith's "She Stoops to Conquer," was the outstanding production of the club this year. It was the first play of its kind to be presented in Kenmore High School and was considered a success by all who saw it. Several members of the club were also in the cast of the Senior Class Play.

Girl Reserves

The Girl Reserve Club has had an exceptionally interesting season. Several dances colored the program, while many excellent speeches by prominent people excited great appreciation. One of the most unusual talks, "Life in Middle Africa," lent a distinctive touch to the activities of February. The latest drawing card has been the spring fashion show. Still later, the Mother and Daughter Banquet and the Girl Reserve Spring Dance closed the program for the year.

However, in spite of the pleasures that participants enjoyed, the membership has declined considerably. This is explained by the fact that girls' basketball occurred on the same afternoon.

Girls' Literary Club

The Girls' Literary Club, under the direction of Miss Esther Hepinstall, has enjoyed one of its most prosperous years. This organization, which is open to all girls who are taking third or fourth year English, was founded with the purpose of studying the literature of all nations. The program this year has been confined to the different sections of the United States and has served the purpose of better acquainting the members with American literature. Through the medium of the monthly meetings, authors and scenes from New England, the South, the Middle West and elsewhere, have been portrayed. The various activities of the club, such as the silver tea for the mothers, the holley sale, and the spring dance were greatly enjoyed. The annual banquet in June brought to a close another successful year.

Alpha Phi Lambda

A long-felt need of our school has been met this year by the organization of Alpha Phi Lambda. This club is for the purpose of fostering creative writing and critical appreciation. Any student of third or fourth year English is eligible, upon the acceptance of a specimen of his work by the members of the club.

Under the efficient guidance of Miss Elizabeth Chittenden, real talent in writing has been discovered and further developed by this organization.

The bi-monthly meetings of Alpha Phi Lambda are held at the homes of the members, where the attempts of the various members are read and criticized, thus making for better writing.

Basketball Season

In the past few years under Coach "Andy" Schultz Kenmore High School's basketball stars have been unusually successful in winning laurels for the Blue and White. This season has been no exception to that rule. The team played a total of fifteen games and won thirteen, the defeats having been met at the hands of a worthy foe, Niagara Falls. Unsuccessful in the playoff, Kenmore lost the R. P. I. championship for the second time in nine years.

The loss of Bill Jackson early in the season was unfortunate as the loss of a star forward would be to any team.

The outcome of this season's efforts brought to the fore the sportsmanlike qualities of the boys. Kenmore had been winning for several years, but when a taste of bad luck came, they carried themselves as well in defeat as in victory.

The boys scored a total of three hundred and sixty-three points against their opponents' two hundred and fifty-five. High scorers of the season were John Jeffrey with eighty-three points, an average of about six points a game; Wesley Snyder totalling sixty-six points, an average of about five points a game. These men were closely followed by William Rutherford, Clayton Skinner, and William Powell. Jackson played in four games and scored thirty-seven points.

Playing one of the hardest football seasons in the history of Kenmore High School, the eleven under the able direction of Coach Baisch, bucked, ran, and passed their way to six victories and only two defeats. A strong Tonawanda team took advantage of a midseason slump and defeated Kenmore, 13-0. The reaction from this defeat served to tune up the running of the team to a high pitch and carried them to victories over two strong Buffalo schools, Nichols and Hutchinson. Later they went down fighting before the onslaught of a veteran Lafayette team, 13-0. These two defeats were games that no team should be ashamed of for they were a fine example of Kenmore's spirit and fight and of the excellent football training Coach Baisch had given his warriors.

Outscoring opponents by 158 points, Kenmore had a most successful season. The last game of the season was a charity benefit game between the Alumni players and the Varsity eleven. The teams were about evenly matched, but under the influence of a bleak, cold day neither eleven could play well enough to score.

Batterson, a guard, and Jackson, an end, were the co-captains. Snyder was with us part of the time, but because of Buffalo's age limit for football players, wasn't allowed to play in the Hutchinson and Lafayette games. Wesling was injured in the Lancaster game and was unable to play during the remainder of the season. Powell, McEwen, and Skinner did their part in the backfield to build up the good record that was made by the team, while Vathy, Harris, Stanley, and Clark kept them fighting to hold their places. On the line were the veterans, Swartz, Martin, George, Little, and Basore, with a newcomer, Stubbs.

Kenmore's Swimming Team, winning three meets and losing six, gave the spectators one of the most thrilling seasons that Kenmore has ever enjoyed through this sport. Each meet, whether won or lost, was close. In practically every meet Swartz took first place in the 200-yard free style, Shryer was first in the medley, and the relay team won. In the qualifying meet on March 7, 1931, Densberger and Snyder placed in the 50-yard free style with Densberger taking third in the finals; Densberger also qualified in the 100-yard back and won the final; Martin qualified and took second in the finals, in the 100-yard breast stroke; Shryer won both the qualifying heat and the final in the medley; Swartz placed in the qualifying heat and took third in the final for the 200-yard free style and the relay team took second place.

Track and Relay

Kenmore started track on April 20 with a veteran team and an exceptional group of new aspirants.

The first meet was on May 9 at Alfred and Kenmore placed third in the 100-yd. dash and third in the javelin throw. A week later at Nichols, the meet was decided in the last event, Nichols winning with 60⅓ points, Kenmore with 8⅔ and Lancaster with 6.

May 16 was the semi-final meet of Western New York track teams. Dunkirk, with 37 points, won; Salamanca had 12; Kenmore, 11; Hamburg, 11; East Aurora, 7½; the remaining points were scattered among five other teams. The winners of the various events went to the state finals in which Kenmore tied for third place.

On June 7, at the Girls' and Boys' County Track Meet held at Kenmore, Kenmore took first place in the Girls' and Boys' divisions. The points gained by Kenmore were 78; East Aurora, 73; Hamburg, 71.

The relay team, not satisfied with winning the Western New York preliminary title, traveled to Syracuse and won third place in the All-State Meet.

With one veteran returning to the squad, the Kenmore Tennis Team opened its season of conquest. This marks the second year of Kenmore's participation in tennis competition.

The team is to be congratulated on its record. In its infancy to win two out of four meets is a record of which it can be proud.

With the return of experienced players next year, a season filled with the spoils of success is anticipated.

One of the outstanding features of the season was the advancement of the team to the Quaker State Finals Championship at Chautauqua, after winning the meet held in Kenmore.

Introducing a new sport into Kenmore High School, the Golf Squad last season played three matches, and although they were not successful enough to win, the scores were very close.

As the boys played against schools in which this game is an organized sport, they met real competition each time. Slated on their list were Niagara Falls, East Aurora, and Lancaster.

Baseball

Ushering in Kenmore's second year of baseball, Coach Henry Nadin developed a team that won three games and secured several close scores. Although under the handicaps that always attend a new sport, the boys on the team were remarkably successful. Because several of the team members participated in other sports besides baseball, great difficulty was encountered in putting the team into condition. Playing again in the R.P.I. League, Kenmore has found the keenest competition in its two years of participation.

The home team was composed of many who were on the original team the first year. There were George, McEwen, Wood, Stirling, Albright, and Powell who aided the team materially through their previous experience.

Since the 1930 season, new rules have been adopted for this sport within the school with the result that the team is working under better conditions. Coach Nadin forecasts a most successful season. Chief among the regulations is the rule that candidates for baseball confine themselves to one sport. Several last year's team members will be back to play and there are many promising candidates yet to be developed. First rank men of the 1930 season were Albright, George, Holbrook, McEwen, Piatak, Powell, Stirling, Wood, Martin, Elithorne, Little, and Rutherford. These men were given keen competition for their positions by the reserve team.

Cheer Leaders

Who are the three lively, white-clad girls pictured above who lead cheers in perfect time at assemblies? The answer is, of course, Peggy Cushing, Ruth Woodruff, and Owena Mae Swachamer.

Who is the peppy fellow below between the loud speakers who secures such splendid support from the crowd? That is Harry Smith.

These enthusiastic cheerleaders have helped our teams carry the name of Kenmore to stellar heights. By standing for the indomitable spirit and the clean sportsmanship for which Kenmore is noted, they have been a factor which has counted in the successful campaigns of our teams.

Senior Girls' Basketball

The Senior and Junior girls who have become proud possessors of the Varsity "K" this year have every cause to delight in a successful season, although they were defeated in the annual Alumni game. They did rout the Faculty by the overwhelming score of 28-0, despite the omnipresent awe in the presence of their teachers.

Tennis

The tennis tournaments were played off this year in a new and improved manner. Instead of one tournament for the entire school, three distinct tournaments were arranged in the Sophomore, Junior, and Senior years. The winners of the respective tournaments were Ruth Woodruff, Alice Wiser, and Jane Quigley.

First Row: J. Guthrie, J. Anson, I. Ferris, W. Hodgson, J. Irwin, G. Holden
Second Row: R. Lorse, E. Raines, H. Perkins, P. Guthrie, M. Kirby, O. Swachamer
Third Row: E. Loeffler, E. DuGray, M. Lowes, N. Tutton, M. Kallas

Archery

Archery was also another popular feminine sport this year. It has been necessary to organize two classes, which meet alternately on Monday and Friday nights. The girls who have had a year's experience were separated into an advance group, shooting for individual scores. The newcomers were divided into teams and their scores were kept collectively. The outstanding shooters of this year were Wilda Hodgson, Janet Irwin, Grace Holden, Isabelle Ferris, and Margery Klosse.

First Row: R. Woodruff, J. Colby, R. Colley, J. Meyers
Second Row: O. Van Knapp, D. Chittley, A. Weiser

Skating

The annual skating meet was held in February of this year, and a ninth grade dark horse in the form of Jane Colby skated away with first class honors. The only requirement necessary for entrance in the meet was that a girl must participate in at least three out of the five scheduled events.

The other girls placing in the meet were Ruth Woodruff, Ruby Colley, and June Meyers.

First Row: M. Powell, R. Wagner, M. Guess, M. McKechnie
Second Row: C. Gudgel, R. Sampson, G. Glover, C. Zimmer, Captains

Baseball

Seventy-eight girls responded to the call of spring practice, which was issued in March of this year by Miss Kauffman. As evidenced by the number of girls who reported, baseball is on its way to a second successful season at Kenmore.

The Senior captains are Powell and Wagner; the Junior captains are Zimmer and McKechnie; the Sophomore captains are Sampson and Glover; the Freshmen captains are Gudgel and Guess.

In Water: G. Chilman, M. Woodward, B. Brown, I. Dilts, V. Murray, J. Irwin

Swimming

Swimming for girls has received an added impetus this year because of the strength tests, exempting some girls from gymnasium. Friday has been set aside as "fish day," and the girls just dive right in!

A series of tests has also been arranged for the mermaids, the beginners receiving a red star and the more advanced group a blue star; the swimmers conquering all obstacles receive a "K."

Track

Although some of the twelve girls who participated in the Erie County Track Meet, held June 7, 1930, have left school, and it is impossible to secure their picture, it is with a great deal of pleasure that we print the record of their accomplishments.

Virginia Bowers who was outstanding in track work during her high school career, won first place in the fifty-yard dash, second in the broad jump, and fourth in the high jump.

The relay team, composed of Victoria Arnold, Dorothy Stains, Dorothy Cummings, and Virginia Bowers proved their ability by winning first place in their event.

In final statement of individual scores, Virginia Bowers won first place in the meet with eight and one-half points Melva Oremus second with five points, and Henrietta Snook third with three points.

Assemblies

As the months disappear, the precision with which the assemblies are conducted often causes the purpose and administration to sink into oblivion. Neither the aims of furnishing amusement and instruction nor the management should go unheeded. The regular assemblies were under the auspices of The School Assembly Association of Rochester, New York, and were financed by our student body. Some of the most successful of these were as follows:

October 3. A lecture on "Humanity" by William H. Wentzel.

October 17. "Safety First" by Frank E. Redmond.

October 24. A fascinating lecture on "The Minds of Wild Animals" by George Morse of the Boston Zoological Gardens.

November 12. An inspirational lecture on "Winners and The Spirit of Winners" by Mr. Waite.

December 9. A lecture by "Bo McMillan."

February 2. A humorous entertainment by Mr. Pugle of Indiana.

February 19. Art Young told of big game hunting with bow and arrow.

In addition to the assemblies of professional type, there were others in which local talent took part. Frequent "Pep" assemblies have taken place, preceding our athletic contests. Two musicians from Shea's Buffalo were most enthusiastically received in the fall. During the winter, a play, "Two Crooks and A Lady," was produced by members of English classes. In addition, two motion pictures, "How We See" and "The New Electric Ship" were enjoyed because of their educational value.

THE FOUR AGES

Gawking, awkward, thrilled yet shy
Every Freshman lifts his eye
To high and mighty Seniors who
Will give the Freshmen just what's due.

A haughty glance, sighs of disgust
To Freshmen who are less than dust.
Each year brings on new signs of rage.
More Freshmen, each in his first age.

The second age, the picture turns
To higher aims. Each Sophomore yearns
To be a Junior just so he
May frown on all those less than he.

The Sophomore year is filled with fun
'Cause after all the homework's done
There are lots of things this old world's for
Than being just a Sophomore.

And now the Junior enters school
To try his hand at higher rule.
Parties, dances, clubs and plays
Fun and more fun fills the days.

The third age isn't like the rest—
It's more than just a thirsty quest
For learning, maybe. Some recall
The third age as the best of all.

The curtain falls for school is over.
Detention, homework are no more.
Out into life we all must start
Heeding not a yearning heart.

Oh, there are those who won't admit
That school was ever made to fit
Into an album filled with dreams
But school is best of all, it seems.

Plays

"SHE STOOPS TO CONQUER"

For the first time in the school records there appears an account this year of an Eighteenth Century play, "She Stoops to Conquer," written by Oliver Goldsmith and presented by the Kenmore High School Dramatic Club on December 17 in the High School Auditorium. The type was so different from that of any other ever given that its approval was marked. The student body as well as the entire audience thoroughly enjoyed the efforts of the cast. Jean Kimball and Frank Marshall, Dan Steible and Ann Conn played the parts of lovers exceptionally well, the humor and pathos of their romances appealing greatly to the audience. Cranston Covell interpreted the part of Tony in a manner far from amateurish. Winifred Wilcox and Paul Wesling gave a portrayal of country life in well-trained acting. Margaret Tyndale proved herself a good maid. Edward Kennedy as Sir Charles was inimitable.

The result of cooperation within the cast insured one of the most successful performances ever staged in the high school. The play was directed by Miss Gladys Evans.

"NOTHING BUT THE TRUTH"

Members of the Senior class presented in exceptional manner James Montgomery's comedy, "Nothing But the Truth," to a large and appreciative audience in the High School Auditorium, Friday evening, March 27. The production was directed by Miss Gladys Evans, high school dramatics instructor.

The dramatic ability of the members of the cast was admirably displayed, each seeming to live his part for the entire performance. The acting of every player was excellent, far beyond that of the usual amateur.

The First Public Speaking Contest

Presented By

KENMORE SENIOR HIGH SCHOOL

At the beginning of the first semester, Miss Evans, teacher of oral English, aroused in her pupils an interest in public speaking. As this interest grew, it was decided that there be a contest in the middle of the year. Miss Evans' plan was carried out, resulting in a public speaking contest held in the high school auditorium, February 4, at eight o'clock in the evening.

The program was interestingly varied, consisting of humorous as well as dramatic numbers, all of which required much self-assurance, talent, and ability to forget the audience. It was as follows:

JEAN FRASER . . . . . "Hiawatha"
Henry W. Longfellow

DONALD LILLEY . . . . . "Tommy"
Rudyard Kipling

BEATA KOERBEL . "The Bishop's Candlesticks"
Victor Hugo

HAROLD JANSON "The Murder of Captain JosephWhite"
Daniel Webster

WINIFRED WILCOX . . "Dona Maria's Defiance"
From "In The Palace of The King"
Marion Crawford

PAUL WESLING . . . . "Michael Strogof"
Jules Verne

BETTY BICKERTON . . . . . "Seventeen"
Booth Tarkington

DAN STEIBLE . . . . . "Gunga Din"
Rudyard Kipling

MARY POWELL . . . . . "The Wedding"
From "Mary Cary"—Kate Boshen

ERIC PRIOR . . . . . "The Highwayman"
Alfred Noyes

The judges, Mrs. Ingersoll, Mr. Hamlin, and Mr. Aydelotte, awarded the first prizes of five dollars each to Betty Bickerton and Dan Steible; second prizes of two and a half dollars apiece to Beata Koerbel and Paul Wesling.

STATE SURVEY

The State Education Department opened its survey of Kenmore schools October 21, when a staff of physical instructors and health experts tested the students, reviewing health and medical work in the schools, and investigating the cafeteria system. Dr. Frederick Rand Rogers of Albany, Director of Health Education, was in charge.

The results of the physical fitness test were as follows: Ross Rogers, of the Senior boys, carried the honors with a score of 137, and Mary Powell, of the Senior girls, with 143. The highest scores of the Junior Class were obtained by Jack Honeywell, who reached the high mark of 154, and Helen Harper, who scored 135.

In the future, pupils will be grouped in the gym classes according to their physical fitness index.

Following the health survey, other officials from Albany in charge of academic work and business control surveyed their respective branches of the Kenmore school system.

Down the Centuries With Mythology

Mythology has always been fascinating because it deals with people who are like mortals and yet have certain supernatural powers. Anything that appeals to the imagination is pleasing, and mythology is especially enjoyed for this reason. A myth is a "sham history" or story held by a body of people to be true and important, although in fact it is false. Mythology does not deal with the belief in gods, but with the belief in stories about them.

The lowest myths are those of such savages as the Hottentots, native Australians, and the Indian tribes in the northwest of this continent. These myths are explanatory; they explain some of the wonderful things which happen, primarily the beginning of the world. It was created, according to the Australians, by Bein-jel or Puad-jel, apparently a monstrous eagle-hawk who also taught men the use of the spear. All the lowest tribes have myths that tell of wonderful beast-gods, insects, ravens, and even coyotes. It is remarkable that in the mythologies of India and Egypt there are many myths told of gods that were more or less beast-like, and even in Greece, Pan had goat's legs and Zeus often took animal shape.

There are to be found in most savage mythologies, many striking resemblances, not only to one another, but to features present in the higher ones. A slightly higher form is found among the Zulus. Their myths center around ancestors, and are like those of the Greeks and our own nursery tales. The myths of the Maores of New Zealand are still higher in character. According to them, there were at first two great gods, a man and his wife, who had many children whom they kept in darkness. Then one child led the others in revolt and separated their parents, earth and heaven, keeping them apart forever. The children then divided the earth and sea among themselves. Thus man was created by Tiki out of clay and among them arose the hero Manui who made the sun and moon keep strictly to their courses by giving them a beating.

The gods of Rome and Greece were the same as mortals in form, only greater. The goddesses were the most beautiful creatures in the world and were often chosen as models for sculpture work. During the time of Alexander the Great the gods and goddesses were thought to dwell in Thessaly on Mount Olympus, a high snow-capped mountain towering in the clouds. Here were the magnificent palaces with scores of servants. None of the gods did any work except Vulcan, god of fire, who labored in his smithy. They often assembled in an open court to discuss business or engage in games and contests. They led luxurious lives and entered into wars with one another.

Conata in Literis

According to the Greeks, Uranus (heaven) and Gaea (earth) were the first rulers of the universe, and the parents of the Cyclops, the giants, and the Titans, who symbolized thunder and lightning, the violence of the sea, and the uncontrolled forces of the universe. However, it was two of the Titans, Cronus and Rhea, who were the parents of six of the gods: Vesta, Ceres, Juno, Neptune, Pluto, and Jupiter. Cronus seemed to be an unnatural father, for he swallowed five of his children. But, in the case of the sixth, Rhea fooled him by putting a stone in the boy's clothes. Thus Jupiter escaped the terrible fate of his other brothers and sisters. When he grew up, he made Cronus drink a strong potion which restored his kin. The whole incident was caused by the jealousy of the father against his son, because he had heard the latter would deprive him of power. It was these stories that played such large parts in the lives of the ancient Greeks and Romans. Later different mythological ideas occurred in Europe and Asia.

In England stories were told of Arthur, an early king of Britain; today these are still related. It is not certain that Arthur lived at all; if he did, he was only a British chieftain, and his success against the Saxons was not great, but only appeared so under the paintings of the minstrels in the dark and early ages. The Hindu myths preserve characteristics of immensity and indefiniteness. Egyptian myths seem to be full of hideous and senseless details, whose use apparently was to show people why they must observe certain rites and ceremonies which the priests required of them, and to inspire them with fear of strange and horrible deities. Scandinavian stories are of strength and savage war, relieved by a peculiar rough humor and touches of pathos. The myths of the Middle Ages were full of romantic sentiment and insisted on the higher virtues of honor, justice, compassion, and courtesy.

We must not suppose that the age of myths and myth-making has altogether passed, for beliefs are still held by savages and those less educated in Russia, Japan, India, China, and Africa. In the United States the nursery tales are an example of myths that have been handed down from generation to generation. The spread of science and the records preserved by our newspapers together with the love of accuracy fostered by our historians tend to prevent the formation of fresh myths and to break down belief in the old ones.

TRANS-CONTINENTAL

Into the sunset, out of the dawn,
Golden fingers an aeon long
Stretch from the East into the West,
And silver wings, that can stand the test
Of wind and weather and power dives,
Bear through the air a score of lives
Depending on their speed and strength.
Throughout the giant plane's great length
A surge of power hums and roars;
Past the window the slipstream pours.
Past the fusilage, past the tail,
Sent by propellers that never fail;
Conquering mountains, conquering seas,
Flying o'er cities, sailing by trees,
Past well-known places and places not named;
Triumphantly faithful, the free and untamed.

Hollow Life

I sometimes think that life is such a hollow thing;
If I should die, what now seems so important,
Would be done or else forgotten—
It would not matter.

We play as along life's path we travel,
We pretend that what we do will really matter,
We imagine that some men are great and others aren't—
What does it matter?

We, even the most "imporant" of us,
Are no more than children playing "living";
A hundred years later
Will anything matter?

AN AMERICAN IN THE NOBELITY

It is a far cry from the classic to the modern novelist, but in any phase of literary work, Sinclair Lewis should be highly honored.

Why was he chosen as the winner of the most coveted literary prize? Why were such men as Eugene O'Neill and Robert Frost overlooked, and Sinclair Lewis awarded the Nobel Literary Prize of 1930? It is because Lewis writes from his soul and experience that his writings are so heartily accepted.

Moreover, his portrayal of American life is in accordance with what the Americans have made the Europeans believe. When European travelers come to America, they see the type of life which is portrayed by Lewis in his books, stories, and lectures.

Sinclair Lewis made our Main Street famous the world over, and "Babbitt" did for the city what "Main Street" did for the small town. He endeavored to portray truly life as it is daily led in America. He wrote of it because there was some inner force constantly urging him onward to the unwritten versions of social life.

It is because Lewis placed all his heart and soul in his works that they are so highly honored and so widely read.

Will they remain famous, become classics, and live through the ages? Sinclair Lewis hopes so, we all hope so, but only time will tell.

RUTH CHALMERS

Spare Ideas

Why is it that in this world of restrictions, we who call ourselves people of forethought ever permitted such a form of literature as the essay to become popular—or even tolerated?

Too much leeway is afforded, too much opportunity is offered to be subjected to literary torture, merely because someone had a spare idea which he wished to have expressed in written form. However far-fetched the idea may be, it must be accepted because it is an essay.

Coming from the French "essai," an attempt, it is merely an abbreviated form, meaning in reality an attempt to force something on people in written form which would not be even tolerated verbally.

It is positively dangerous to leave such a form of writing about, so that anyone may take advantage. Such a weapon in the hands of the inexperienced may prove fatal. Our favorite theories may be shot and killed by the pen of ridicule. Our fondest memories may be shattered and desecrated by the bomb of cold hard fact.

A man with an idea is unscrupulous. He takes singular pleasure in torturing the less fortunate among us not so blessed, by waving like a red cloth before infuriated eyes, his ideas.

There should be a law against the essay. One is protected against the thief and the murderer—why not against the essayist?

Trying to write humor for people who think they appreciate it, is a dreadful bore; but I suppose trying to read humor written by people who think they can write it is even more boresome, cause you can fool some of the people some of the time, and you can fool some of the people some of the time, but I'll be "gosh durned" if you can fool some of the people some of the time; but as the contributor to a weekly humor magazine said as he received his first check, "my cents of humor is improving."

To return to the subject—let's be serious. I've often wondered if people realized how humorous being serious is; perhaps this may be attributed to the fact that seriousness is such a foreign and ill-used trait in our modern constitutions. Constitutions—"fer heaven's sake," if not for mine, who started us on the subject of history? History belongs to George Washington, Charles Lindberg, Clara Bow, Dan Steible, and all those other celebrities who form the basis of current conversation. Never you mind folks, we'll blaze our own historic trail, and show 'em how to really make history.

WE wish to extend to the 1931 graduating class of Kenmore High School heartiest congratulations and best wishes for the future.

We'll make an auspicious start, by taking the route for China, and see for ourselves just how K. H. S. would act in the land where everybody minds his own "q's" and lets the mergers take care of the peas and carrotts. Hey! hey! (oh no, that's for horses), well, he! he! doesn't Keith Morgan look perfectly adorable in a que?) And there's Jane Quigley with an "x;" n'other mistake—axe belongs to George Washington also; oh well, there's cherry trees in China too. At least there better be, for "Scotty" Rutherford plans to practice his tree sitting there. He picked the cherry tree, in order to cut down on the food overhead.

China is a funny country, but then the Chinese are funny people. Over there the ones who are not on the government pay rolls are called bandits instead of Democrats. Wonder which monicker John Jeffery would prefer, bandit or Democrat? T'would be rather tough for Jeff to become a bandit, for they pay their men only what they're worth; they have their own system of cutting down the overhead!

It's a good thing we Kenmorites are versed in the ancient customs or we'd be at a distinct disadvantage. Of course we can't rattle off the language like a native born Chinaman, but you ought'a see us write the stuff! Why we can make more meaningless marks on a sheet of paper in five minutes than any two Chinamen can in fifteen.

There's no doubt of Kenmore High School's scoring a huge success in the "Land of Laundries," but now that we've our fill of Chop Suey, dead rats, and idols, we're kind'a glad to set foot on familiar soil; but you can't say my little story didn't have a happy ending; everyone is glad, now that it is over!

Dear Professor,

I am told that if it wasn't for my face I would be good looking. How can I improve my looks?

A Bounder.

Dear Bounder,

Place your face in a mud pack made up chiefly of cement and Chile saltpeter—let it remain for three weeks until thoroughly hardened (being careful not to overeat in the meantime). Then remove the mask by means of a compressed-air drill (don't mind if your nose comes off with the mask). Next collect a bottle of chlorine by Baisch's Latest Improved Methods, being careful to note its physical and chemical properties. Place the bottle under your nose (if any) and breathe deeply several times. After this treatment you need not worry about your looks—in fact, you can't.

Dear Professor,

It was about two weeks ago that I began to notice that I alone was holding her affections. I would be good-looking if it wasn't for my face. I make myself by talking (I stutter a little) about myself. I have taken her to the show twice in the last two weeks. Do you think she wants me just for my money? How may I win her back?

BROKEN HEARTED

Dear Broken Hearted,

Yes, she's after your money; she is working towards a breach-of-promise suit. The thing for you to do is to fool her by marrying her and then make her live on twenty-three cents a month. But first you must overcome your stuttering. You could practice talking with pebbles in your mouth; in your case I would advise using gall stones or grapefruit.

WATCHING THE DICTATOR

is a decided advantage in taking dictation. See the young lady above? She is writing on the Stenotype.

THE STENOTYPE is used for taking dictation instead of writing in a notebook with a pencil. It is small, practically noiseless, prints English letters, writes a word at a stroke.

STENOTYPY is easier to learn, easier to write, easier to read, less tiring, makes you faster, makes you more accurate, makes you more efficient, than pencil shorthand. Graduates write 150 words a minute.

Field for Stenotypists: Court reporting, convention reporting, high-speed secretarial positions, technical dictation such as law, medicine, engineering, etc.

Business wants and gladly pays for the added efficiency which the Stenotype gives.

Come in for a demonstration and free trial lesson!

When planning your Annual . . .

AS each new Staff undertakes the planning of a Year Book it is confronted with the same old problems which have perplexed the workers of previous years.

And yet, to each new Staff these planning and production problems are all new and ordinarily must be solved without the benefit of the experience of those who have solved the same problems in the past.

Much of this grief is avoided when the Staff works with The Du Bois Press. Out of our wealth of experience in building Year Books we have formulated certain well defined standards of procedure for the guidance of each new Staff.

To enjoy the full benefit of our Creative Service we recommend a preliminary conference between the members of the Staff and the Manager of our Year Book Department. This preliminary conference should be arranged at as early a date as possible and does not incur any obligation. . . . . Our "idea" or planning department has created many out-standing and prize-winning Year Books. . . . . May we be of service to you?
